SUNDAY AUGUST 13, 1899.

TRUSTS AND LABOR UNIONS.

The Carson News a few days ago published an article upon the subject of trusts, in which was the assertion that a miners' or any other labor union was as much a trust as the sugar trust. The JOURNAL in a short article took issue with the News, which says that the paper probably misinterpreted its intent, which was "to draw out some intelligent anti-trust paper like the JOURNAL to discuss it in fairness."

The views of this paper have been pretty often and fully expressed, and, as we believe, fairly, upon the subject of trusts. The subject has been worn threadbare from the fact that the argument has been all upon one side, the News being the first paper on the coast, so far as we know, that has raised its voice in their defense. In that it manifests more courage and sincerity than its Republican contemporaries or its party, which denounce in type and resolutions what they uphold and sustain in candidates and legislation.

It is probably true that some trusts are better, or rather not so bad as others. Like cankers, some are worse than others, but none are desirable appendages to the human body, any more than are trusts wholesome adjuncts to the body politic.

The News cites the typefounders trust as one which has been beneficial to publishers. While the JOURNAL admits some of the advantages claimed, in the matter of convenience in having orders promptly filled, uniformity, etc., its experience does not justify a similar admission. On the other contrary, in regard to price. It further more is decidedly of the opinion that if all of the advantages claimed by the News were valid, the benefits to the publishers would be many times offset by the ruin the combine has caused to small operators in that line, and the host of toilers, thrown out of employment by the forced retirement of their employers.

Says the News: "Can you any more say to the manufacturer that he shall not charge over three cents for a paper of pins, than you can say to the laborer that he must not expect over two dollars as his day's wage? Is not the way to correct the evil to commence the manufacture of pins to be sold at two cents?"

No, you cannot dictate the price of either, but you can refrain from such legislation as will give a monopoly the power to defy legitimate competition, when the matter of price will regulate itself by the natural law of supply and demand. The labor unions rely only upon their own efforts to regulate the price of their product. No one is prohibited from joining them and sharing the benefits as they ask for no such legislation as will give them a monopoly in the labor market. The doors of the trusts are closed against competitors in their lines while those of the unions are open to all. That's the difference between them.

"What is to prevent the JOURNAL from enlisting the support of its wealthy friends and having them establish the manufacturing of trust articles which he can place on the market at a profit and undersell the trust?"

Availing itself of the Yankee's privilege of answering a question by asking another, the JOURNAL will ask the News "Why it continues to complain of the Southern Pacific's extortionate and discriminating freight charges?" Why don't it induce its wealthy friends to build a competitive line through the State which will furnish cheaper transportation? When the News builds the railroad the JOURNAL will start wholesale opposition which will under-sell the trusts.

GENERAL MILES.

In the war history of our country, certainly not of the United States, was there ever such outrageous treatment of the ranking General of the army as Nelson A. Miles has been subjected to by the McKinley administration. He has been completely ignored, and has had less voice in the conduct of the war than hundreds of inexperienced officers in the volunteer service, who are scarcely competent to handle a brigade. There has been no question concerning his ability, and it is more than an inference that his enforced retirement from active service, was attributable solely to political causes. He was shabbily treated from the beginning, but actual persecution commenced with his objection to poisoned beef being furnished to the soldiers of the army.

The miserable condition of affairs in the Philippines appears to have aroused the administration to the necessity of some other than political work in that quarter, and according to the dispatches, Secretary Root had on the 10th instant a half an hour's conference with General Miles. Further than that military matters were the subject of discussion, nothing is known in regard to the object or purport of the conference. It is not unlikely, however, that the advice of the commanding officer of the army was sought as to the means of rectifying the blunders of the War Department in the eastern archipelago. If such advice had been earlier sought much of the present entanglement would perhaps have been avoided. But better late than never, and it is to be hoped that not only the advice, but the services and presence of General Miles at the scene of hostilities will constitute the result of the recent conference.

FORCIBLE AND CONCISE.

Phil Frances, a contributor to the columns of the Alturas Plaindealer, sums up the political situation as follows:

The Republican leaders are afraid of Bryan. They talk big for public effect, but they know too well the magnitude of the trouble ahead of them. The next session of Congress will settle the Philippine question to a great extent, and the conduct of affairs over there has been so wretched that expansionists are as much disgusted as anti-expansionists—to use the cant phrases of the day. The people have had their eyes turned to foreign affairs so long that they are becoming weary of the whole subject. They will turn their attention to internal affairs soon, and when they do the supporters of Mr. McKinley are going to be kept busy explaining. The Republican tariff has been an utter failure. It is the worst tariff we have ever had and brings in least revenue. Under it, in spite of onerous and unusual war taxes, which are still collected in time of peace, the treasury has become bankrupt, and trusts have sprung up all over the land. The last Congress apportioned over a billion and a half dollars and in spite of it there is a deficit of a million in eight, and it grows bigger every day. The Philippines have cost us already $200,000,000 and we haven't got them yet. The immense strikes in the east give the lie to the rosy accounts of general prosperity there. There is prosperity, but it is the prosperity of the capitalists and speculator.

Gov. Candler of Georgia seems to look at the lynching problem in a proper light, and appears anxious to set an example to the Governors of several other Southern States. He went to a little town where a lynching was threatened, took charge of the endangered prisoner, and conducted him safely to the Atlanta jail, thus proving his good faith in denouncing the lynching epidemic, preventing another blot upon the name of his State, and gaining for himself high regard both as an official and as a law-abiding citizen.

A LAW passed March 2, 1899, to prevent scandalous uses of the flag, reads as follows: "Section 1—Any person who shall desecrate the flag of the United States by printing thereon or attacking thereto any advertisement, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor." If to use the flag as an advertisement is within the purview of the law, there are hundreds of political fakery and office-seekers in the land, who ought to be in jail.

DIED.

MAYBERRY—In Reno, Nev., Aug. 12, 1899, Kate Mayberry, a native of Nevada, aged 24 years, 1 month and 22 days.

To-day's Race.

This afternoon the relay bicycle race for the State championship will take place at the Carson track.

The race is of more than ordinary interest from the fact that the Carson team is confident of beating the Riveriders, something they have never been confident of in the past.

The Reno team has been training long and hard, and is in good condition for the contest, so there is little doubt but what the race will be hard fought from start to finish.

A special rate has been made for the occasion by the management of the V. & T. railway; the fare from Reno to Carson and return will be $1.

In order to accommodate those who cannot go on the morning train to attend the event, the local train will leave Reno at 1 P. M., and arrive in Carson at 2:30, in time for the passengers to see the race.

The importance of this race may be judged from the fact that the Western Union has strung wires to the track from the main line and will have a special reporter and operator in the judges' stand, who will send bulletins of every quarter mile to all parts of the United States.

The admission price will be 25 cents and 25 cents extra for seats in the grand stand and arena. Ladies will be admitted to the grand stand free of charge, according to a telegram sent the JOURNAL by the Carson Racing Committee.

After a great deal of deliberation the Carson Athletic Club decided to make these charges on account of the very heavy expense which they have incurred in bringing these races off here. The expense at the present time have run up to nearly $300.

The general price of admission to all relay races is 50 cents and then extra for reserved seats, but so as to make this popular, the committee decided to charge only 25 cents general admission and 25 cents for seats in the grand stand and arena.

At the Opera House To-morrow Night.

The local papers all along the line from Auburn, Nevada City and Grass Valley have given the Vroom-Addison Company the greatest praise for their excellent performances. They have been greeted by large and fashionable audiences everywhere, and we trust that our theater patrons will give them the patronage which so an important dramatic organization deserves. Both Mr. Frederic Vroom and Miss Grace Addison are artists that have appeared in all the larger cities throughout the country, where they are prime favorites. The company, of which there are fourteen, who support the stars, will produce the exquisite comedy in three acts which made the celebrated Lillie Langtry famous some years ago, entitled "Pygmalion and Galatia," which will be preceded by the charming one act romantic drama "Love and Duty."

On Tuesday night the brilliant sparkling comedy drama in four acts, entitled "The Duke's Pledge," which deals with the aesthetic and voluptuous reign of Louis XV of France, and is full of grace and royal gallantry.

The reserved seat sale indicates that large audiences will greet these well known talented artists.

Knocked Senseless.

Mrs. Taber was knocked senseless by the lightning at her residence of her mother on Piety Hill yesterday. She was standing by the stove in the kitchen cooking dinner when the bolt struck the house, breaking panes of glass in the kitchen window and lighting up the rooms as if the electric lights were turned on. Mrs. Taber was thrown five or six feet by the shock and lay unconscious for several minutes. Mrs. Mayer was sick in bed in an adjoining room and she was badly shocked. Mrs. Taber's little boy was standing by the bed and received a severe shock. Luckily none of them were seriously injured and they are none the worse to day for their experience yesterday.

Spain's Greatest Need.

Mr. R. P. Olive, of Barcelona, Spain, spends his winters at Aiken, S. C. Weak nerves had caused severe pains in the back of his head. On using Electric Bitters, America's greatest blood and nerve remedy, all pain soon left him. He says this grand medicine is what his country needs. All America knows that it cures liver and kidney trouble, purifies the blood, tones up the stomach, strengthens the nerves, puts vim, vigor and new life into every muscle, nerve and organ of the body. If weak, tired or ailing you need it. Every bottle guaranteed, only 50 cents. Sold by S. J. Hodgkinson, druggist.

W. T. Tremont of Eureka county, who received the appointment of supervisor of the national census in this State, is said to have received instructions from Washington to establish the headquarters of the Nevada bureau at Virginia City.

Death of a Former Nevadan.

W. P. Harrington, City Recorder and Justice of the Peace in the early days of Austin in this State, died in San Francisco a few days ago. He was a schoolmate of the late Senator Sargent of California and for many years held a position in the Custom house at San Francisco. He was a pioneer of Nevada county, and a correspondent of the Nevada City Herald writes that he died in extreme poverty, and that his funeral was attended by none of his old time political or personal friends whom he had assisted in by-gone years, although there were hundreds of them in the city at the time of his death.

W. F. Thomas of Reno, was in Quincy a short time yesterday morning, on his way from Clover Valley to Clairville, where he goes to visit his mother, who is stopping near the latter place during the summer. Young Mr. Thomas will soon proceed to Reno to re-enter the High School at that place.—Quincy National Bulletin.

A. R. De Fluente, editor of the Journal, Doyleston, Ohio, suffered for a number of years from rheumatism in his right shoulder and side. He says: "My right arm at times was entirely useless. I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm and was surprised to receive relief almost immediately. The pain balm has been a constant companion of mine ever since and it never fails." For sale by W. Pinniger.

The Riverside Hotel is famed throughout the State for the excellence of its dinners and the solicitude always manifested for the welfare of guests by the genial proprietor, Captain Gosse. If you want to treat your family right, take them to the Riverside for a Sunday dinner to-day.

"We have saved many doctor bills since we began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in our home. We keep a bottle open all the time and whenever any of my family or myself begin to catch cold we begin to use the cough Remedy, and as a result we never have to send away for a doctor and incur a large doctor bill, for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never fails to cure. It is certainly a medicine of great merit and worth."—D. S. Meekle, general merchant and farmer, Mattie, Bedford county, Pa. For sale by W. Pinniger.

It is very hard to stand idly by and see our dear ones suffer while awaiting the arrival of the doctor. An Albany, N. Y., dairyman called at a drug store there for a doctor to come and see his child, then very sick with croup. Not finding the doctor in, he left word for him to come at once on his return. He also bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which he hoped would give some relief until the doctor should arrive. In a few hours he returned, saying the doctor need not come, as the child was much better. The druggist, Mr. Otto Scholz, says the family has since recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to their neighbors and friends until he has a constant demand for it from that part of the country. For sale by W. Pinniger.

HEARD AT THE COURTHOUSE.

Chapter Two, in Which the Deputy Sheriff Spins a Yarn.

Once more had the Washoe county officials gathered in the Sheriff's office for a few minutes rest from their arduous duties in looking after the welfare of the people. Matters of local interest had been discussed, the claim of Torreyson & Summerfield against the one time city of Reno had been reviewed, and conversation had begun to wane, when the broad, interesting and inventive topic—trout fishing—was broached by Treasurer Boyd, who quietly told how, in the early seventies, he had caught 350 fine rock cod out of a little brook in northern Nevada using a bent pin as a hook.

Assessor Evans looked sober for a minute and then explained the science of fly fishing as it existed in the days of '49. "When I was young," he said, "I had a different fly to use for every second of a year, making a total of 31,536,000 flies. My traveling companion was thoroughly familiar with all of them, and could call off the proper fly to cast at any second. As for myself, I never cared much for fly fishing, and was only familiar with 525,600 varieties, one for each minute of the year."

The office cat, which had been sleeping quietly under the speaker's chair, opened his eyes and yawned suspiciously.

"Well," commented Deputy Sheriff Hayes, in his easy, nonchalant manner, "it certainly required a retentive memory to acquire such a knowledge of the insect world. I will tell you a little story of mine, which, although strictly true in every particular, I have always kept to myself because it sounds so unreasonable that if skeptics heard it they might injure my reputation for veracity. All present here, however, know me too well to doubt the story, especially as I am willing to vouch for every detail."

"It happened in the fall of '78. A friend and I were on a fishing trip up the Truckee, and had camped in a little log cabin not far from Verdi. The river was full of fish, fairly alive with them in fact, but we fished up and down the stream for three days and never got a bite, although in still water they could be seen lying on the sandy bottom, thicker than sardines in a box."

"Somewhat discouraged, we decided to go back to Reno, so went down to the cabin to pack up our belongings. In the meantime it clouded up and began to rain. We arrived at the cabin just in time to escape a thorough drenching, for the rain came down in torrents. Having some dry wood on hand, with some difficulty we kindled a fire in the fireplace and prepared to cook our evening meal. It rained harder and harder, logs and rocks were washed from the hillside down into the river, which soon became a raging, roaring flood. If our cabin had not been built upon an elevation it would surely have been swept into the river."

"Suddenly I heard a shout of surprise from my companion, who was at the fireplace frying some bacon. Turning around quickly I saw a splendid McCloud trout tumble down the chimney, and fall into the hot frying pan with a resonant clop. In a few minutes it was cooked to a turn and placed on a side dish. A second later another was caught in the same way, and in a few minutes all the fish we desired were cooked and ready to eat. You see, the rain was so heavy that fish came out of the river and swam around in it, and a few got caught in the chimney."

The audience dispersed. Some one was heard to mutter a sentence concerning mentalities disordered by long confinement and persistent usage. Janitor Richardson, entering a minute later, found the office cat lying in the most distant corner of the room, stone dead.

Announcement.

DEATH OF KATE MAYBERRY.

After a Three Week's Illness She Succumbs to Typhoid Fever.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Mayberry was invaded by the grim specter yesterday at 11:30 A. M., when the life of Miss Kate Mayberry ceased to be. Miss Mayberry contracted malarial fever about a month ago while teaching school at Clark's Station. She came to Reno, and a few days later was stricken down with a complication of typhoid fever and malaria, from which she never rallied.

Miss Mayberry was the most popular young lady in western Nevada. Being of a lovely, happy disposition, she was the light and life of all social gatherings. A nobler type of womanhood than was Kate Mayberry, would be difficult to find, and all Reno feels her loss keenly.

She was born in Reno, June 20, 1875. Here she grew up and was educated in the public schools. After graduating from the High School she entered Bishop W. Walker's school for girls, and when that institution closed, became a student at the Nevada State University, graduating with honors with the Normal Class of '96.

While at the Normal school "Kate," as she was known to all, was the recognized leader of her class. Nothing was ever done in society or business but Kate must be there to plan and help, and every student who attended the University between the years of '92 and '96 remembers her as a friend.

After graduating from the Normal School she took up teaching, at which she was so successful that her experience was confined to two or three schools, for she always taught a number of terms in succession.

A father, mother, brother, sister and aunt are completely prostrated over the loss of their loved one, who from childhood had always been idolized for her bright, sunny, and generous nature, witty, laughing and cheerful at all times.

When it was learned that she was ill with typhoid fever, all the people of Reno expressed their sorrow and inquiries were made daily as to her condition. Only yesterday it was thought she would recover, but today we are obliged to chronicle the death of the best loved girl in Reno.

The funeral will take place Monday afternoon from the Episcopal church, of which she was a member.

Telephone to Reno.

James O'Brien and William Metcalf returned Sunday evening from a trip to Sierra Valley and Downsville. They went over the proposed telephone line to make the starting point for supplying the poles for the line from there to Downsville. From that point to Nevada City, Mr. O'Brien will look after the business of cutting the poles. The new line will be extended from two points—Quincy and Nevada City—at the same time, the two crews meeting at Downsville. This done, the two crews will rush the line through to Reno. With the complete facilities for doing such work at the command of the company, this extension from Sierra Valley to Reno will not require more than a week's time.

People may rest assured that we shall soon have close communication with Johnsonville, Sierra Valley, Downsville, Nevada City and Reno. This is a necessity, one that has existed for many years.—Plumas National Bulletin.

Bartlett Springs Water.

The Reno Mercantile Company is doing a land office business in hardware, groceries, provisions and especially in the Bartlett Springs Water trade. The company is sole agent for that celebrated water which is used at all first class hotels in the United States. It is growing in popularity every day and is away in the lead of all other mineral waters, not only on the Pacific Coast but all over the Union. It retains its mineral qualities indefinitely after bottling, and is as palatable and refreshing after years in storage as when first taken from the Springs. A case of it will answer the same purpose as a visit to its fountain head which is one of the most popular resorts for health seekers on the American Continent.

The Cuts and Display

In ladies shirt waists, or gaudies, dainties shown at the Palace Dry Goods House is marvelous. You can buy those goods for one-third less than formerly. Their only reason for this slaughter sale is not to keep any summer goods over for next year. Nobody should miss this opportunity. Only fresh and seasonable goods are offered and some choice goods are still left after their gigantic sale.
